Greetings

Dear Heguru Families,

Greetings to all of you, our current and new family members. Thank you for being part of this great learning family.

Please take time to review your child progress on how their progress in learning to keep maintaining your child's learning goals. Your child learning doesn't stop at school; it continues on.

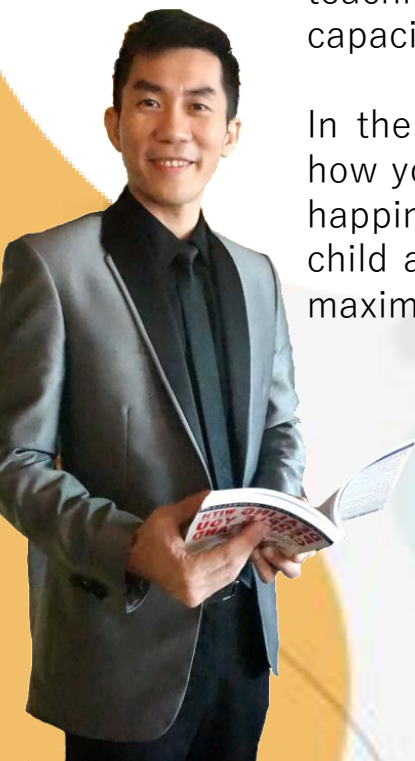

So please continue to participate and involve in your child's learning. You play the biggest role in your child growth. You can start with a simple question "Which activity do you like to learn in school today?"

Besides that, please make sure that you are checking your child's assignments, for children above 3 years old, continue to motivate them to finish up Intellectual and Number Development Superprint.

It is my expectation for our teachers and staff to ensure that all of our children and parents are engaged in a meaningful teaching and learning journey, that always expand the brain capacity.

In the meantime, please feel free to send us updates about how your child is doing. We would love to know and share the happiness with you on all the important milestones of your child and we truly hope they will be able to learn and get the maximum brain stimulation as possible.

EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION WHAT IS THE PURPOSE?

The goal of early childhood education is to properly nurture children so that they will be able to make full use of their “fundamental abilities” when they become adults, find their dreams and try hard to make the dreams come true. The most important things in childhood education are to nurture children’s “fundamental abilities” that help them in the future and to nurture their hearts to be strong and full of compassion.

In order to foster “the true elite that will play an active role in the 21st century”, Heguru provides a place where both child and parents can work together toward the future.

What is the HEGU method?

Heguru is an effective early childhood education method that has been studied and developed by Hirotsada and Ruiko Henmi for over 30 years. While conventional education methods mainly focus on “how instructors teach children”, the Heguru method focuses on “how to grow children’s ability to acquire education”.

If “children’s ability to acquire education” is high, they can respond in excellent ways to every aspect of learning. During the period of early childhood education/elementary school education, enhancing children’s abilities is of the utmost importance. At Heguru, we established a method that enhances children’s fundamental abilities from the periods of pre-natal and infancy. However, the Heguru method is more than a simple early childhood education. We also focus on fostering the “good hearts” of children.

Recently, there is a social issue that the number of mentally immature adults has increased, and that has led to more problems. To create people who can really make a contribution to society, the education of their “hearts” is essential. The Heguru method is an education method to “foster abilities and the hearts of children to the maximum.”

To enhance children's abilities, "right brain development" is very effective. It has been widely recognized that children benefit from early education. Additionally, to increase the level of effectiveness for childhood learning, "right brain development" is the key to success. Training the "right brain" from infancy will allow children to enhance their various fundamental abilities on their own pace without hassle. Heguru has evolved this "right brain development method" day by day.

Learning and Thinking Differently in History

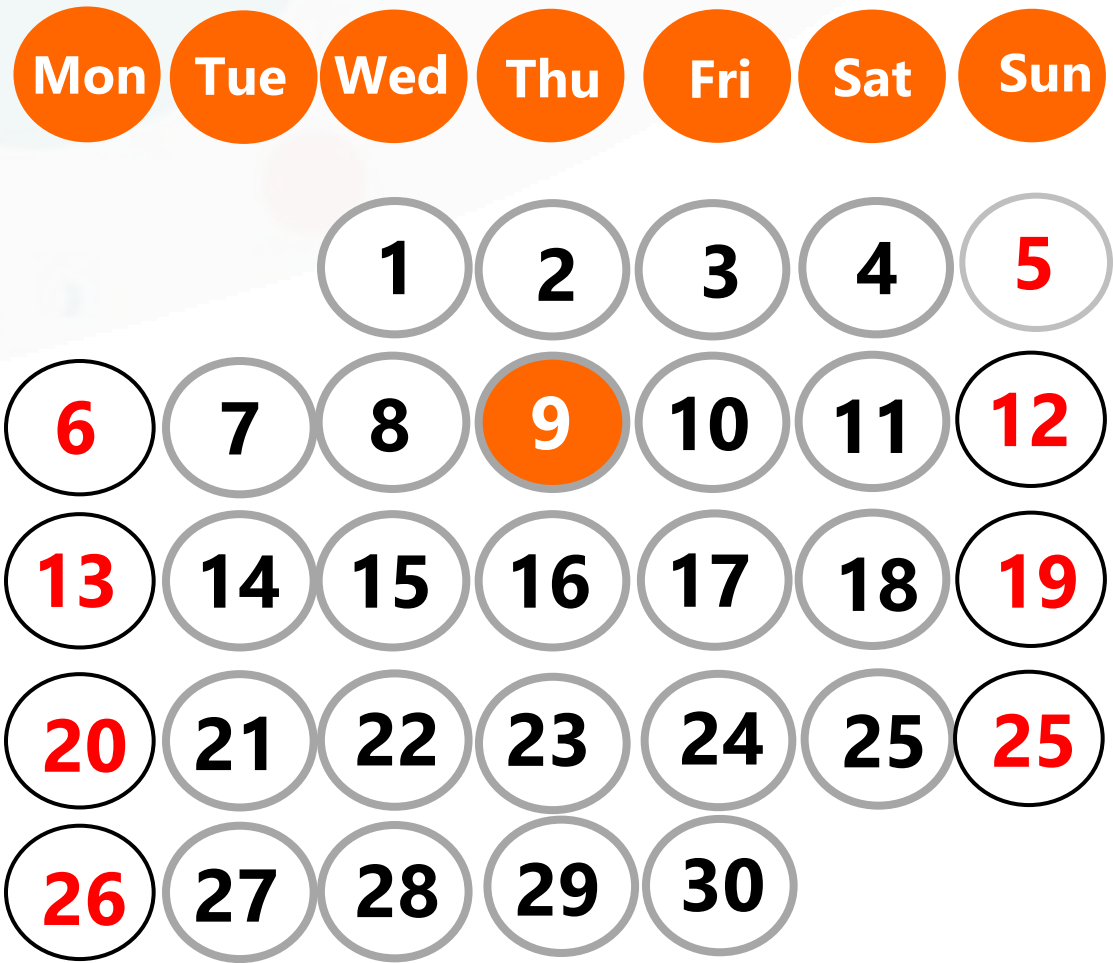

Did Leonardo da Vinci have dyslexia? Did ADHD cause Babe Ruth to focus on baseball? Historians say it's possible many major figures from the past had learning and thinking differences.

However, it's hard to know for sure about people who lived 100 years ago or more. And for many—especially women and people of color—there aren't enough records to let us guess. But here are some accomplished individuals who made a big impact on history, from centuries past to more recent times. They overcame challenges and may inspire your child to do the same.
